NEW AMBULANCE RULES.

MEASURES TO STOP DISAGREEMENTS BETWEEN SURGEONS.

THE BOROUGH DIVIDED INTO ELEVEN DISTRICTS—THEIR BOUNDARIES AND AMBULANCE STATIONS.

Detailed rules and regulations governing the ambulance service of the various hospitals of Brooklyn have been sent to the superintendents of the hospitals by Assistant Sanitary Superintendent Robert A. Black. President M. C. Murphy of the Health Board has approved the orders of Dr. Black. It is expected that the new rules will prevent the disagreeable scenes sometimes attending ambulance calls, where two surgeons are called to the same patient or so into each other's supposed district.

The Borough of Brooklyn is divided into eleven districts, a hospital being assigned to the care of the patients in each district.

Among some of the new rules which will be enforced are the following:

In all cases of apparent alcoholism the possibility of the existence of other abnormal conditions of the patient should be ascertained before the ambulance is sent. It is expected that the new rules will prevent the disagreeable scenes sometimes attending ambulance calls, where two surgeons are called to the same patient or so into each other's supposed district.

The boundaries of the eleven districts are as follows:

- First—By the water front and a line extending from the East River through Fulton-st., Boerum Place, Deane-st., Nevins-st., and Gowanus Canal. The ambulance station will be located at the East River Hospital.
- Second—By the waterfront and a line extending from the East River through Fulton-st., Boerum Place, Deane-st., Nevins-st., and Gowanus Canal. The ambulance station will be located at the East River Hospital.

TROLLEY WIRE CAUSES EXPLOSION.

AN ITALIAN INJURED THROUGH A PECULIAR COMBINATION OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

A peculiar accident happened yesterday at noon in Myrtle-ave., between Throop and Sumner aves. A trolley wire broke and fell on the street, establishing a complete circuit. The shaft of flame that resulted ignited the gas in an old gas main which was being dug up by a gang of Italian laborers employed by the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. The main was twelve inches in diameter, and was two and a half feet below the surface in Myrtle-ave. The main was closed at the Throop-ave. end, and no suspicion was entertained that there was any dead gas in the main. When the wire fell there was a flash of vivid light and a terrific explosion followed. Owing to the shallowness of the trench the Italians were able to get out easily, and the hurt to the trolley wire was not serious. The explosion caused a wholesale destruction of windows in the neighborhood, besides delaying traffic in the street for an hour.

MAY BE NO IPHETONGA BALL.

BROOKLYN'S DISTINCTIVE SOCIAL FEATURE IN DANGER OF BEING OMITTED THIS YEAR.

There seems to be a probability that there will be no more Iphetonga balls in Brooklyn. For the last twelve seasons this affair has been the most exclusive of its kind in this borough, occupying the same position as the Patriarchs' Ball in Manhattan. Since the Iphetonga was first started many of the organizers have passed out of Brooklyn society, either by reason of death or on account of change of residence. One of the original fifty only six remain on the list—Tunis G. Bergen, Frank S. Benson, Arthur M. Hatch, Edward H. Litchfield, A. Augustus Low and William Cary Sanger.

For some years the committee has been composed of the last four mentioned. The burden of the work has, however, fallen on Arthur M. Hatch. He now finds that the pressure of his other duties forbids him to devote time to the Iphetonga ball.

POVERTY NOT A GOOD GROUND.

JUSTICE KEOGH MAKES SOME REMARKS ON A SUIT FOR SEPARATION.

In the suit brought for separation by Mrs. Susie Ohtmann against Alphonse A. Ohtmann, which was tried yesterday in the equity branch of the Supreme Court, Justice Keogh made some remarks at the close of the trial. He asked counsel to hand up this case as a precedent. Turning to counsel, he said: "This is a new ground for a separation. The husband fails in business, and he says 'Let us go to court and get a separation.' He married her for better or for worse, but he is not willing to stand up under adversity. The contract of marriage is not a private matter. The public have rights here which must be protected. The real reason for the separation is because he has no money, and it is cheaper to live a bachelor life. I think that the marriage tie should be preserved, and that he should support her. I will take the papers and reserve my decision."

BIG BONES FOR BROOKLYN.

SKELETON OF THE MASTODON GIGANTEUS TO BE MOUNTED BY THE INSTITUTE.

FOUND LAST AUGUST NEAR NEWBURG AND SECURED BY PROFESSOR MICKLEBOROUGH—A TUSK NINE FEET TWO INCHES LONG.

There will be placed on exhibition within the next few months in the new Museum Building, in the Eastern Parkway, a fine skeleton of the mastodon Giganteus, which was recently discovered in the town of Newburg, about three and one-half miles back from the Hudson River and three hundred feet above tide water. The discovery of this specimen was due to an accident. Early in August last Frederick W. Schaefer, a market gardener, was digging trenches, when his spade struck, in the midst of a black and peaty loam, a hard object, which he took for a stone. After further excavation several large bones were discovered.

It so happened that Professor John Mickleborough, principal of the Brooklyn Boys' High School and the president of the Department of Geology of the Brooklyn Institute, was spending the summer near by. He at once recognized the value and importance of the discovery, and saw that the bones were so handled that they would not be injured. The matter was referred to the trustees of the Brooklyn Institute, and a committee was appointed to raise by subscription sufficient funds to pay for the bones and for mounting them. It is estimated that the entire cost of purchasing and mounting the specimen will be about $2,000, and the committee which has raised the money will turn the specimen over to the Brooklyn Institute.

The skeleton is that of a young male animal, probably not more than six or eight years old, but it is said that the animal had attained almost its full growth. The formation of the bones gives the clew to the animal's age. The epiphyses on the ends of the bones are not grown fast, and on this account the skeleton to scientists is of unusual interest. The bones are straight, thick, and are in perfect condition. The tusk is the most remarkable feature. One of them is absolutely perfect, without a break or injury of any kind. It is smooth like ivory, and it is believed to be the longest one so far discovered. It measures 9 feet 2 inches in length. The great curvature of these tusks is a peculiarity which has attracted attention. The tusks of most other mastodons found in America are curved, and the curvature is not exceeding a foot, whereas this immense tusk resembles closely the tusks of the European and Asiatic mastodons found in the northern parts of the Eastern continent in latitudes further north than those of the American mastodons.

NEW JERSEY NEWS.

REMARKABLE KIDNAPPING TALE.

BASTRESS FELL ASLEEP IN CAMDEN TO AWAKE IN A NORTH CAROLINA CAVE, SURROUNDED BY COUNTERFEITERS.

Cranbury, Nov. 15 (Special).—It seems incredible to believe that a man could be kidnapped in broad daylight in a busy railroad terminal and then conveyed five hundred miles to a den of bandits and counterfeiters in a North Carolina mountain retreat, yet that is exactly what happened to Basil R. Bastress, the young foreman of the Cranbury creamery, who so mysteriously disappeared on his way home from a visit to his sweetest, Miss Lillian Penn, on September 22. He had $300 in money, gold watch and some jewelry on his person, and foul play was suspected. Since then detectives have been baffled to find a clew to his whereabouts.

On Tuesday morning Montgomery Bastress, who lives in Camden, N. J., received a letter from him that he was safe and on his way home. The letter told a horrible tale of kidnapping and adventure. Bastress was kidnapped by a gang of desperadoes and counterfeiters, and he was taken to a cave in the mountains of North Carolina, surrounded by a gang of desperadoes and counterfeiters. He was held in the cave for several days, and he was forced to work for them. He was then taken to a cave in the mountains of North Carolina, surrounded by a gang of desperadoes and counterfeiters.

Hackensack, Nov. 15 (Special).—John McClinton, the diminutive disciple of Maaon T. Hunt, known as "John the Baptist," is threatened with an insane asylum because of his recent eccentricities. John is so impressed with the idea that he has a special mission to lead the ungodly in the vicinity of the Lord's Farm to the Saviour that he cannot resist the impulse prompting him to speak to each wherever he meets them. These appeals to the people have been so persistent that the Editor of the "Evening Record" advised him to cool his fervor or he may have to be cooled for him. At his own request, John was taken to the insane asylum, where he is now being treated.

HIS RETIREMENT LIKELY TO LEAD TO A MUDDLE OVER SOUTH ORANGE SEWERS.

South Orange, Nov. 15 (Special).—The decision rendered by the Supreme Court yesterday, settling the Kip-Weeks fight in favor of John R. Weeks, is likely to lead to serious complications. It will be remembered that Mr. Kip was seated on the face of the returns. When the sewer plans came up for action, Messrs. LEADERS AT VARIANCE.

WANSEER AND WOOLLEY TAKE UP ARMS AGAINST COLONEL DICKINSON.

The Republican Committee of Hudson County, which has been rent by factional fights in precincts and wards, is now disrupted by a more formidable division. Prominent leaders are no longer in harmony and Postmaster Wanser and Chairman Woolley are now arrayed against Colonel Dickinson. The split occurred at the convention. Dickinson favored the nomination of Erwin for Sheriff, but Wanser and Woolley went for Frederick Fagan in the race and made an earnest effort to secure the nomination, but were unsuccessful.

The defeat of Erwin has increased the bitterness of the split. It is alleged that the Wanser-Woolley faction did not give the support to Erwin to which he was entitled as the regular nominee. It is probable that there will be a spirited contest between the factions for the next month, when members of the County Committee will be elected to secure the control of the organization.

Another evidence of the existing dissatisfaction and enmity is the charge of Committee-man Morgan Thomas of Bayonne against Edward Mitchell, who had charge of the arrangements for the ratification meeting. Mitchell did not expend the money for the objects for which it was appropriated. The complaint is not taken seriously, as Mitchell had less than $500 to spend, and had to pay for the meeting, which was a very large sum.

In the last week of December, 1898, Mr. and Mrs. Kempson separated, and Kempson was ordered to pay for a divorce, which he later secured. Mrs. Kempson established a residence there, and applied for a divorce, which he later secured.

The property in dispute consists of real estate in the heart of the city of Cleveland, Ohio. Within the last quarter of a century several attempts have been made by the heirs to recover the estate, but they have been unsuccessful. The heirs were unwilling in their efforts to prove their kinship to Leonard Case, and they were unable to obtain the necessary evidence, which would enable them to prove their relationship.

Case had three brothers, came to this country about one hundred years ago. The three brothers settled in Hunterdon County, and reared a family. The heirs were unwilling in their efforts to prove their kinship to Leonard Case, and they were unable to obtain the necessary evidence, which would enable them to prove their relationship.
